WORKING TOGETHER TO MAKE A DIFFERENCE

MORETON CONSULTING: WORKING TOGETHER TO MAKE A DIFFERENCE

We partner with organisations to contribute to community wellbeing and drive social change.

Our unique combination of knowledge, skills and lived experience means we are very well placed to partner with Aboriginal and other community organisations. We also work with government agencies and corporates who are working in the area of human services and improving economic and social wellbeing.

Our team are all experienced people who have had many years of professional and lived experience.

WHAT WE VALUE

HOW WE WORK

We are committed to working in a way that truly recognises and values the knowledge, skill and lived experience of Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal people. We believe that together we are able to achieve great things.

We do this by drawing on our diverse knowledges, expertise and lived experience. Between us we have a deep understanding of the resilience and strength of Aboriginal families and organisations, as well as the challenges that they face. We also have extensive experience in working within the public and not for profit sectors as well as running large and small organisations.

We bring a capacity building and learning organisation approach to our work. We prefer to partner with our clients and work as part of their team rather than as a provider of services.

We often establish cross cultural teams of two and use the Moreton Two Ways Learning and Doing practice in our work. This is especially important when we are working with Aboriginal people and/or organisations.

WHO WE ARE

Moreton Consulting Pty Ltd was established in 2010 – ACN 145 128 712. In September 2014 we became a majority Aboriginal owned company. This reflects our commitment to self-determination and is a genuine two ways partnership.

We are based in Redfern and also have offices in Bellingen and Wagga, NSW. We regularly travel and are experienced in working with remote, regional and urban communities.
